

What Will It Take To Change Direction?

Dupont Circle Citizens Association (DCCA) Zoom Webinar
Thursday, March 18, 2021
7:30 P.M. To 8:30 P.M.

The March 18, 2021, webinar on Homelessness at 7:30 p.m. is the fifth of six 1- hour Zoom webinars organized by the Dupont Circle Citizens Association (DCCA) to educate residents of the Dupont and broader communities about topics concerning single people who are experiencing homelessness in the Dupont neighborhood. The intent of DCCA's six webinars running through March 25th is to help residents think differently about the issues so that they are better equipped to help/lobby/volunteer or otherwise engage to support progress toward ending chronic homelessness. Recorded versions of the webinars will be shared online for subsequent viewing via YouTube or other platforms.

Panelists at the 1-hour webinar on March 18th will discuss how one should interpret the various statistics and data shared by the government and non-profits relative to homelessness and affordable housing in DC. Are we really making progress? How best can progress be measured? What are we spending to address the multitude of problems? Is it being spent wisely? What do we need to spend in order to truly address the twin problems of homelessness and inadequate affordable housing in DC?

We will hear from the following people:

- Tom Fredericksen (Chief of Policy and Programs at The Community Partnership)
- Stephen Glaude (President & CEO of the Coalition for Nonprofit Housing and Economic Development)
- Eileen (Kroszner) Rosa, (Deputy Chief of Policy & Programs at The Community Partnership)
- Jesse Rabinowitz (Advocacy and Campaign Manager at Miriam's Kitchen)

The panel will be moderated by Glenn Engelmann who, in addition to serving as DCCA President, is a member of the Temple Sinai Washington Interfaith Network (WIN) core team and the Jews United for Justice (JUFJ) tax and budget working group. Tim Norman, a fellow DCCA Board was instrumental in organizing this session.
